Cache Librarian Honored

Approximately 100 friends and admirers of Miss Virginia Hanson, Cache Valley librarian, turned out for a luncheon honoring her at the Bluebird Cafe Saturday noon.

Miss Hanson, who has handled a variety of duties over the years, was surprised by the event, which had been a well-kept secret for some time.

She was presented a corsage along with other gifts, which included a velvet-covered rocking chair and miniature books for her collection. In addition, a special collection will be started at the Cache County Library in her name.

Persons are invited to donate to a fund to purchase books for the collection, or residents can give a book to the collection. Special bookplates will be entered in each volume noting it is part of the Virginia Hanson Collection, along with the donor's name.

During the festivities Saturday, J. Stuart Williams, chairman of the Cache County Library Board of Trustees, offered a few remarks following a prayer by Logan City Commissioner Russell Fjeldsted.

A special production by the Gonfalon Players presented "Chicken Little" and "The Three Little Pigs." The players will offer children's plays on one Saturday each month at the library.

To commemorate the event, a special letter from the board to Miss Hanson was read. Portions of it were as follows: "Today is your day—a day the community is honoring you. We, the members of the Cache County Library Board of Trustees, join your many friends in saying thank-you.

Thank-you for your years of service to our community. Thank-you for your gracious manner and quiet nature. Thank-you for the friendships you have made for the library and for the several decades of Cache residents you have introduced to good books.

Thank-you for your patience with reticent library boards, your tact in dealing with commissioners, your skill in fixing leaking pipes, cranky furnaces, dangling bannisters, not to mention overdue books, insufficient budgets, poor shelf space.

But mostly, thank-you for being yourself and making our library a place of warmth, friendship and scholarship."
