NEWBERY MEDAL BOOKS

Children's Reading List
2020

The Newbery Award is named in honor of John Newbery, an 18th-century publisher known as "the father of children's literature." The award is given annually to the author of "the most distinguished contribution to American literature for children," chosen from books published in the United States during the previous year. It is awarded by the American Library Association. The recipient must be a citizen or resident of the United States.
